

Sponsorship and Exhibition Opportunities

The 10th Multiscale Materials Modeling (MMM10) conference will be held October 2 - 7, 2022 at the Renaissance Harborplace Hotel, overlooking the famed Baltimore Inner Harbor, in Maryland, U.S.A. Multiscale materials modeling is a well-established branch of computational mechanics, computational biomechanics, and computational materials science, in which existing and emerging methods from interdisciplinary fields are combined to bridge phenomena, that are commonly inherent to complex material systems, across different length and time scales. The scope of the conference ranges from fundamental sciences to applied engineering.

We offer different opportunities for companies, research centers/labs, institutes, and publishers to:

1. Increase their visibility and promote their products and services to the MMM international community.
2. Develop new international collaborations and alliances.
3. Attract new talents.

Additionally, the international participants of MMM10 will be interested in viewing and discussing publications, software and other materials related to computational materials, multiscale modeling, materials informatics, data mining, and machine learning in the Exhibitor Area. This area will purposefully be the focus of daily activities to provide maximum traffic for our exhibitors. With over 700 attendees from all over the world, exhibiting at MMM10 provides a unique, low cost opportunity to present your product or service to a large national and international audience.
